

Voice is a weapon

Voice is a political tool. It can hurt or it can comfort. Use it to teach, tell stories, tell the truth, make people dream, make people sing, make people think... Use it magically. Don't waste it.

Take scissors, cut them and use dice to make them move on the board game.

Code is life

And life is code

When you code during a party

This means you feel really alone

And you're alone

You doesn't exist for most of the people around you

But you exist for code

You're not useless

You're just in another world

Everybody forgets you

Even your best friends

Because futility is the queen

But you are building another world

Something more beautiful than everything around you

Something more honest

Something free

You're off main road but you forget that road is one of the smaller part of the world

You put your energy and your tears in code

You're important but nobody knows it

They don't know who they're dealing with...

I don't reclaim anything because they ripped all my freedoms.
